1. Please identify the most vital issue(s) in Taiwan's political development in your opinion, and explain why you consider the issue(s) to be crucial. For any of such issue(s) you identify, please also comment on either Taiwan's strengths or weaknesses (or both, if you like) demonstrated in the issue.
(25 %)

2. To what extent can the study of politics be reasonably conceived as a "science"? In your answer, please be sure to include at least some minimal comparison between "political science" as a social science on the one hand, and natural sciences on the other. (25 %)

3. We have been adopting democracy in Taiwan for almost two decades by now. Based on what you have observed, would you argue that democracy has already taken root in this society?
(25 %)

4. Among all the sub-fields in political science, what seems to interest you most? Why? (25 %)
